Brian Gross
Visual Storytelling Leader

How do you build a creative organization capable of doing ambitious work?

How do you turn a one-off success into a repeatable capability?

How do you work across editorial, product, technology and business functions?

How do you develop people, raise standards and improve execution?

- Edited and managed assignments for 200 high-impact presentations, 1,800 social posts and 1,200 illustrations.
- Standardized data collection, component tracking and analysis by defining goals at the start of projects.
- Formed a task force to launch reusable tools for all staff, resulting in 5.1 million page views across 104 stories.
- Scaled in-house illustration expertise to reduce turn-around time and reliance on external vendors.
- Drove a newsroom style guide and color palette

- Established a restrained, content-first visual identity to cut through the noise in a crowded landscape.
- Transitioned traditional print designers into news developers through targeted training and skill sharing.
- Doubled the staff from 25 to 50 designers and added managers to meet demand for ambition and quality.
- Introduced dedicated roles for project editing, illustrated reporting, motion graphics and digital infrastructure.
- Collaborated with the product department on branding for verticals, podcasts, games and App News

October 2026
briandgross.com

Brian Gross
Visual Storytelling Leader

[CASE STUDY]

October 2026
[briandgross.com]

Goals: Cinematic aesthetic, include footnotes, cast of characters, text embeds, audio
Wins: Managed timing, resource and engagement expectations for “defining record”